Chocs away will see the group split into teams with a project leader, creating stunning looking chocolates, packaging them and pricing them ready for an afternoon of selling in local shopping towns.

The team will need to consider a marketing strategy, a name for their creations and the best way to make the most of their stock.

After lunch the teams will be given their designated areas of the office for setting up their sales base.. The teams will then organise themselves to sell their stock in the quickest time as well as for the most money.

The challenge will finish by gathering all teams together, the submission of each teams winnings and the team who has raised the most will be crowned the champions. The winnings will be presented to the charity.

The local paper can be invited along on the day to get some photos and quotes from the teams about their challenge and the impact to both the business and the charity.
